It was inaugurated as a hotel in 1955.

The grandparents bought this property where they opened the National coffee house, a novelty shop where they made sales in instalments, and a restaurant that would also serve as a cinema and dance hall ... This was the house of "Las Lolitas". There were 6 siblings: Dolores, Mariana, Antonia, Nieves, Esperanza, and the youngest, Pepe. The name of "Las Lolitas" was because the eldest of all, the grandmother, was called Dolores ...

In most of these photos we can see Luis with his mother, "the grandmother". We can also see Luis sitting with his daughter Patricia sitting in the same place where the statue of our grandmother is now. We can also see pictures of Luis's cousin Toñin and his uncles Mey and Pepe, who was like a father for Luis. The two children on bicycles in front of the hotel are Luis and his great friend Lou Lou Verollet, who were like brothers ...
